Ms. de Maigret has collaborated with The Luxury Collection to produce A Night in Seville and the Morning After, a guide to her favorite places to stay, dine and discover. Alongside a digital series of city guides, the book will launch later this month with the opening of Hotel Santo Mauro in Madrid.

"When on the road, meeting new people, finding a cool bar on the corner, a small exhibition with local treasures or the perfect hotel makes me feel so happy and alive," Ms. de Maigret said, in a statement.

"I am thrilled to be able to collaborate with The Luxury Collection a brand that I look to as a home away from home always in harmony with its setting to share some of my favorite places in Seville and around the world."

Representing a wide range of endeavors, these personalities are united by an understanding of world cultures, while aiming to identify travel experiences through their own perspectives.

Born in France, Ms. de Maigret has traveled the world, appearing on runways from Milan to London to New York as a model, producer and fashion icon.

Ms. de Maigret joins a roster of Luxury Collection global ambassadors who bring the portfolio to life for international travelers.

The brand recently debuted the launch of its third collaboration with global explorer Margherita Maccapani Missoni a limited-edition scarf inspired by her travels with The Luxury Collection in India and a homeware line from Mercedes Salazar inspired by a visit to North Island, a Luxury Collection Resort, Seychelles (see story).

A Night in Seville and the Morning After by Caroline de Maigret will be available for purchase on Luxury Collection's online store for $40.
