Swiss hotel chain Aman Resorts International is expanding a popular business segment.

In Tokyo, the brand's first standalone residences offer luxury clients an address inside the Azabudai Hills Mori JP Tower, Japan's tallest building. Across the top 11 floors, 91 apartments feature two- to six-bedroom layouts, private entrances, separate elevators, sweeping views and more.

Eastward bound

Aman Residences, Tokyo grants inhabitants access to offerings such as a tearoom, bar, lounge, media room, library and dining room, complete with private chefs.

The skyscraper is also home to a spa. Here, wellness seekers can take a sauna steam, splash around an 82-foot swimming pool and workout at the on-site gym.

The interiors of the living spaces are the work of international design firm Yabu Pushelberg.

Between the reflection pond in the lobby and the incorporation of the four natural elements water, air, fire and earth the country's traditional styles and philosophies are represented.

Overlooking Tokyo Tower, the milestone project opens in Toranomom-Azabudai, a large high-end development in the city. Announced in 2023, Aman's sister brand, Janu, picked the neighborhood to open its inaugural hotel (see story).

Quarters contain fireplaces, private balconies, floor-to-ceiling windows and decorations that like the new residences, meld heritage-informed aesthetics. Designed by Pelli Clarke & Partners, Janu Tokyo presents 122 guest rooms across eight floors of the Azabudai Hills building's Residence A Tower.

The surrounding district is diverse, inclusive of both gardens and urban experiences that are classic to a metropolis such as dining, art museums, international schools, galleries and beyond, all on the front door of Aman's newest residents.
